

Classic Learning Test Disability Requirements

Classic Learning Initiatives (CLI) is happy to provide Classic Learning Test (CLT) testing accommodations to students with disabilities. Our modifications apply to those whose impairments are cited as hindering their high school education. The disabilities for which CLI provides accommodations include:

- Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder
- Learning disorders
- Visual impairment and blindness
- Hearing impairment and deafness
- Physical disorders
- Head injuries
- Psychiatric disorders
- Autism spectrum disorders
- Communication disorders
- Tic disorders

CLI makes the following accommodations available to students with appropriate documentation. If your desired modification is not listed, please submit certification of your disability or disabilities, and CLI will do its best to fulfill your request.

- MP3 test format
- Visual magnification (enabled by increasing the size of the font on screen)
- Braille exam (includes all graphs and figures)
- Signed exam
- Reader
- Written instructions
- Signed instructions
- Additional time
- Appropriate seating

To insure the timely fulfillment of accommodations requests, CLI encourages early submission of the following required documentation. Though the length of time necessary for the institution of certain modifications depends on the disability or disabilities in question, CLI recommends that students submit certification of their disability or disabilities eight weeks prior to their test date. The following two types of documentation should be e-mailed to info@cltexam.com:

- A clear statement including all the accommodations requested (such as, in the case of visual impairment, braille text and additional time) for the student's successful completion of the CLT
- One of the following:
 - The registrant's current 504 or IEP plan
 - A current (four years old or newer) written diagnosis, accompanied by test results, by a certified physician or teacher of the student's disability or disabilities

Upon receipt of the above records, CLI will do its best to honor the interested student's request(s). CLI will maintain communication with the registrant throughout this process. For questions, please contact Molly Barnes at (844) 925-8392, Ext. 710 or mbarnes@cltexam.com.
